

Fall Semester 2016

ANTH 311

Public Archaeology: Method and Theory
Monday & Wednesday 9-11 am

Covers legislation and regulations concerning cultural resources and the historic preservation system of the United States.

Provides a real-world experience through an archaeological excavation at Rowan Oak to look for evidence of slave quarters, with full participation by the students, to see how the process works.

This course will prepare both advanced undergraduate and graduate students for employment in the cultural resources management field

Taught by Dr. Tony Boudreaux and Dr. Maureen Meyers, Department of Sociology & Anthropology. For more information, email: tboud@olemiss.edu or memeyer1@olemiss.edu